House approves funds for Texas Flat Road

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County is one step closer to getting the money needed to improve Texas Flat Road.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas stated Thursday that the bill appropriating the first $3 million of the more than $4 million needed has passed the Mississippi House of Representatives.

The funds will come from an increase in the appropriation for the Economic Development Highway Act.

Hancock County Port and Harbor Director Harold Olsen worked in Jackson this week to help push the bill, which Cuevas said was heavily supported by Representative J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis.

The board president said he expects the bill to pass the Mississippi Senate without difficulty and said Senator Gene Taylor has been working with the supervisors to get the bill passed.

Cuevas said the supervisors decided to try for the economic development funding because "This was a promise the governor made to us if we got the ASRM at the test site."

ASRM stands for Advanced Solid Rocket Motor, one of two new projects at John C. Stennis Space Center. The other is the Advanced Launch System, also known as ALS.

In the board's original letter to Mississippi Department of Economic Development Director J. Mac Holladay, which was written in October of 1988, Cuevas estimated the combined investment as being about $375,000,000 and the number of jobs the projects will create as 1,600.

Cuevas said that Holladay has been supportive of the board's efforts to get the funding.

The remainder of the money for the project, which is estimated at about $4,145,175 if the road is to be improved to Federal Highway Administration Standards, will come from a Community Development Block Grant.

Cuevas explained that the county has had good response regarding the grant application. TEXAS FLAT—Page 2A

Bay-Waveland schools declare crack-down on drugs on campus

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District officials have decided to crack down on drugs.

According to Superintendent of Education Roger Oge, letters detailing the programs will be sent out to parents of students in all schools.

The Bay-Waveland district has had a drug abuse prevention education program for some time now, but the new program is different. It will be conducted with the assistance of the Bay St. Louis Police Department and other law enforcement authorities, including drug-sniffing dogs, Oge said.

He explained that the program has been under consideration for more than a year. Reports of new types of drugs being used by junior high and high school students elsewhere helped spur the program's implementation.

"The influx of new drugs didn't prompt the program but it did give it greater urgency," Oge stated, adding that the "new drugs" were designer drugs such as the one commonly called Ecstasy.

He added that there has never been any instance in which a student was caught dealing or using drugs on any of the Bay-Waveland campuses.

However, the superintendent said, "We believe that our schools, along with other schools, have had an ongoing drug problem and we believe it exists at the junior high and high school levels. As far as we can tell, it is not in the elementary schools."

LOCAL BRIEF

PLAY AUDITIONS

Today and Monday the Waveland Players are conducting tryouts for a play that will be staged May 5, 6 and 7.

Six Rooms, River View, has a cast of four men and four women, 20 years-old and up. Also, volunteers are needed to help backstage, said director Nan Patton Ehrbright.

The auditions will be 2 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman.

"We suspect we have some students trying to sell, some passing drugs on campus and some attending school under their influence."

"We suspect that if Bay High is like other schools we have marijuana, cocaine and its derivatives such as Crack, uppers, downers, Ecstasy and other designer drugs, and of course, alcohol, which is also a drug," Oge said.

He explained that he has received reports that drug trafficking on the Mississippi Gulf Coast has increased.

"We have new drugs, more dangerous drugs, being foisted upon our students and it is not going to happen at our schools," adding that the major drugs of concern are the designer drugs and those like Crack, which has a highly addictive nature.

He said that the report emphasized the need for a "drug enforcement program so vigorous and so sustained" that parents are being notified because "we don't want innocent students caught up in it."

He said information obtained from students indicate that DRUGS—Page 2A

Students hope contest sparks recycling action

BY D.C. HARVILL

The United States is the largest consumer in the world, hands down and, consequently, is also the biggest producer—of waste.

We produce three and a-half pounds of garbage a day for every man, woman and child, nearly one ton annually per person.

By allowing so much material to be thrown away, we create serious environmental and economic problems that could be alleviated if we took a more concerned approach to the items we use and discard. A more conscientious attitude can save both resources and money.

The eighth grade class at Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis knows the road to improvement begins with education and has embarked on a project they hope will help educate people to the benefits of a more conscientious use of resources through recycling.

The students in science teacher Amy Poole's class have initiated a recycling drive in which O.L.A., Christ Episcopal Elementary and St. Clare Elementary are competing to see who can recycle the most waste material.

"We sent notices to 11 schools in the area trying to get them involved in the contest," Poole said, "but we only got responses from those two schools."

The Let's R.O.C. (Recycle Our Community) project will run until the end of March. The winning school will be determined by the amount of money raised, in proportion to its number of students, through the sale of recyclable materials to recycling companies.

The school bringing in the most material will receive a trophy and the top collecting class at each school will be treated to free pizza Pizza Hut.

Others assisting with the contest include Gulf Coast Waste, Paul Smith Environmental Consulting Service, Seymour's Jewelry and Gifts, Sea Chest, Inc., and Bay Motor Winding.

The students have put together information packets on recycling to be used by teachers and have distributed letters asking that recyclable materials be brought to the school on specified days.

Recyclables being collected by the schools are aluminum, clear glass, newspapers and copy paper.

The students said they would like for the emphasis on recycling to continue on a community level when the contest is over and that hope local disposal companies will begin recycling.

The girls at OLA point out that recycling saves both resources and money, because it is cheaper to recycle than to produce a product from raw material.

It also utilizes items which otherwise might blight the landscape as litter and it helps reduce the need for landfill disposal of waste, a process that is not only expensive, but is questionable on points of health and environment.

Included in the information packet compiled by the students is a list of things that can be done to help facilitate a continuing recycling program.

State and local governments can provide economic equity for recycling, industry can use recycled materials for packaging and help inform the consumer by marking it with the recycled symbol.

According to the list, civic and environmental groups can aid in the effort by supporting pro-recycling legislation, initiating education programs and actively promoting recycling.

And everyone can assist the cause by writing to industry encouraging them to use recycled materials, buying products that bear the recycled symbol, not buying products that are not packaged in recyclable material, writing their congressmen, writing to media and, of course, by recycling. The students suggest that RECYCLE—Page 2A

Hancock Schools gets new business manager

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Hancock County School Board has approved the hiring of a former state school systems auditor as the district's new business manager.

Sheryle C. Coaker, approved by the board at their regular meeting Wednesday night, will assume the position March 1. She is replacing Greg Jones who resigned from the post effective as of February 1, "presumably to pursue other employment," said County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph.

Coaker, a native and lifelong resident of Petal, had been the chief financial officer for George County School for the past three years. Prior to that she had been chief financial officer for Greene County Schools and served in the state Auditor's office for seven years, according to Randolph.

"I am glad to have someone in this office with her experience," Randolph said.

A graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in accounting, she currently is reviewing for the Certified Public Accountants exam, Randolph said.

Among the duties Coaker will assume in the Hancock system will be the preparation of budgets, budgetary control, preparation of financial statements for the district, supervision of purchasing, overseeing of school activity funds, payroll, investment of revenue and supervision of the four member clerical staff.

Drugs

there may be as many drugs in the Bay-Waveland schools as in other districts of the same size, but "the problem is still with us."

"We have had drug education in our schools for the last 30 years and the problem continues to expand," the superintendent said. "We have just reached the point where enough is enough."

"We want to send a clear message that if you deal drugs, possess drugs or use drugs in the Bay-Waveland schools, expect to be caught."

Anyone who has information about drugs in the schools may call Oge' at 467-6621. He said the names of anyone supplying him with such information will be kept confidential and that if he is not available, a message should be left and he will return

the call.

"We need the cooperation of parents and students," Oge' said.

The program will include random visits to the schools and campuses by a drug-sniffing dog law enforcement officers.

If the dog indicates that a locker contains drugs, it can be searched because a court has ruled that lockers are school property.

If the dog indicates that a vehicle contains drugs, legal procedures to authorize a search will be followed. If the ensuing search yields any illegal substances, the owner of the car or truck will be held responsible.

Locker inspections without use of the dog will also be conducted at random.

Anyone suspected of possess-

ing drugs on school property may be searched under legally correct procedures, he added.

Anyone found violating drug laws will be expelled from school and criminally prosecuted. In addition, any unauthorized persons found on school property will be prosecuted for trespassing and any parent who is found to knowingly allow a child to use or possess drugs will be charged with criminal neglect.

Oge' said that students who know about drug deals may also face accessory charges if they fail to report the parties involved.

In addition, some school personnel will be deputized to make sure that arrests can be immediately carried out.

Oge' explained that the district also plans to work with law enforcement officers to establish a reward system for anyone who gives drug-related information, but that system will include anonymity for the informant.

Among the recommendations to parents is one which states that any child who exhibits any of the symptoms of drug use be taken for blood or urine tests. In addition, he recommends counseling students and reminding them that they will be monitored along with drug users if they are seen on campus with those students.

Oge' also stated that students who legally use prescription drugs have nothing to fear as long as they abide with established school policy. Prescribed medications are turned in to the school office each day and are kept in a secured area. Students are allowed to leave class to take medications but must turn them back into the office for the remainder of the school day.

tion, which is being handled by

of South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

However, the awarding of the grant is contingent on the first $3 million being approved by the legislature.

The road improvement is a project for which the board has tried to obtain funding for years. Several tries by the previous administration to obtain Strategic Defense Highway monies due to the road's use as an accessway for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant were unsuccessful.

Eventually, the county paved a section of the road from Highway 603 to the entrance of a small cemetery just past the gates of McLeod Water Park, but sections of that pavement began to break up in 1987.

The road is mostly gravel with inadequate drainage and load support. Its bridges need to be replaced and much of it is impassible during bad weather.

Cuevas said the road serves as a transportation route for space center employees already, but when repaired it can also serve as an escape route in event of an emergency at the center and as a direct link between the space center and Stennis Airport and the surrounding industrial airport.

Depending on when the senate acts on the board, the road appropriation could be discussed at the board's next meeting, which is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Wilkerson seeks re-election to Ward 4 councilman post

John Wilkerson, Bay St. Louis councilman for District Four, has announced his intention to run for re-election.

Wilkerson, 56, and his wife Lucille have three children, Agnes Dalton, John E. Wilkerson and Beth Burleson. They also have three grandchildren, Heather Wilkerson, Patricia and T.J. Burleson.

Wilkerson was educated in the New Orleans Public School System and has lived in Bay St. Louis since 1957. For the last 10 years he has been employed by Rocketdyne, a division of Rockwell International, as an engineering planner at Stennis Space Center. He is completing his first term as councilman for District Four.

He served in the Armed Forces during the Korean Conflict and continues to be active in veteran's affairs and community services, having served as Hancock County Veteran's Service Officer from 1976 through 1979. He has been a member of the American Legion for 35 years and holds a life membership in Clement R. Bontemps Post 139 of Bay St. Louis. He served as commander for two years and as Ninth District Commander. He is presently serving as post adjutant.

While commander, he worked with Boy Scout Troop 208, sponsored by the American Legion. He presently is a member of the post's Americanism Committee and is involved in post programs such as Veteran's Day, Boy's State, Oratorical Contest and school awards and scholarships.

He holds a national committee appointment to the Americanism Commission as vice-chairman and is the internal affairs chairman for the department of Mississippi. He has been a delegate to every national convention of the American Legion since 1983.

Wilkerson also is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He served as master of ceremonies and guest speaker for several Disabled American Veterans programs and ceremonies.

In 1982, he worked and developed plans to build a monument honoring men killed in World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict and Vietnam. The monument was dedicated on Post 139 grounds in 1983 with the names of every Hancock Countyman who died in those four wars.

Wilkerson has also been active in community service. In 1961, he worked on a committee to help bring industry into Hancock County and to pass a bond issue to build industrial enameled. During the late Mayor Warren Carver's administration, he served on an advisory committee. During and after Hurricanes Betsy and Camille he served with the Civil Defense.

A Catholic, he is a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Parish. His children attended O.L.G. School and he served as president of the Parent's Club. He was a member of the school board and served on the board that established Our Lady Academy.

He also was involved in organizations at St. Stanislaus and received a plaque from the senior class of 1975 for the four years he helped with their fund raising. He helped organize the SSC Band Booster Club of which he is past president and treasurer.

While serving as councilman, he worked to complete the sewage and drainage projects in the annexed area and paving projects throughout the city. Street resurfacing and correction of drainage programs were also accomplished while he served as councilman. He served as chairman of the committee which investigated and established a civil service program in the city to protect city workers jobs from political interference. He endorsed and worked with the mayor and other councilmen to educate and upgrade our police and fire departments. He served as council president from 1987 until 1988.

In announcing for re-election, Wilkerson said, "If re-elected, I make the same promise to the people of District Four that I made four years ago, that is to always be available and to serve them to the best of my ability."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Pearl River Community College will begin offering night classes at Bay Senior High School in Bay St. Louis with an organization meeting on Monday night at 6 p.m. in the school's annex.

The announcement was made recently to the delight of many of the residents of the coastal area of Hancock County.

The offering of the new classes will give local residents an opportunity to attend classes once a week for 10 weeks from 6 to 10 p.m.

The tentative night classes are in Art 1113, English 1113, History 1113, History 1173, Math 1203, Math 1233, Math 1313, and SPT 1113, oral communications.

There is a need for at least a 10-student enrollment for each class.

We have been told there will be other subjects to be offered if these classes are successful.

We are hoping there will be a lot of residents interested in Pearl River Community College's Academic Night College at Bay Senior High.

Persons interested in further details can call 467-6621, Bay Senior High's superintendent's office.

The recent resurfacing and widening of the Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis is to the delight of most motorists who use the thoroughfare.

It is sure a smooth ride now compared to the way it was, and the elimination of the sharp drop offs may prevent further damages to automobiles and strongly reduce the possibility of accidents due to a loss of control.

I can remember one night I struck one of those sharp drop offs several years ago and ended up with two flat tires.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Given a choice, most people would rather own a house and pay on a mortgage than pay rent year after year and never have anything to show for it.

But did you know that Mississippi taxpayers dish out more than $5.4 million a year just for rent on buildings to house state agencies? That's money the state never sees again.

Just like the homeowner—who has something to show for his or her hard-earned money—it makes just as much sense to put state dollars into the purchase or construction of buildings to house state agencies.

This can be done in a financially responsible way through the capital improvements plan that I have proposed. This plan is currently before the Mississippi Legislature.

State government rents a total of 1.7 million square feet of space at a total cost of $7 million—$5.4 million in state money and the remainder in federal funds.

Under the capital improvements plan, Mississippi would issue bonds to buy or build our own buildings. The cost of the bonds would be paid off over the life of the buildings—just like you do when you buy a house.

It just makes plain good sense.

There are other reasons why we need the capital improvements plan.

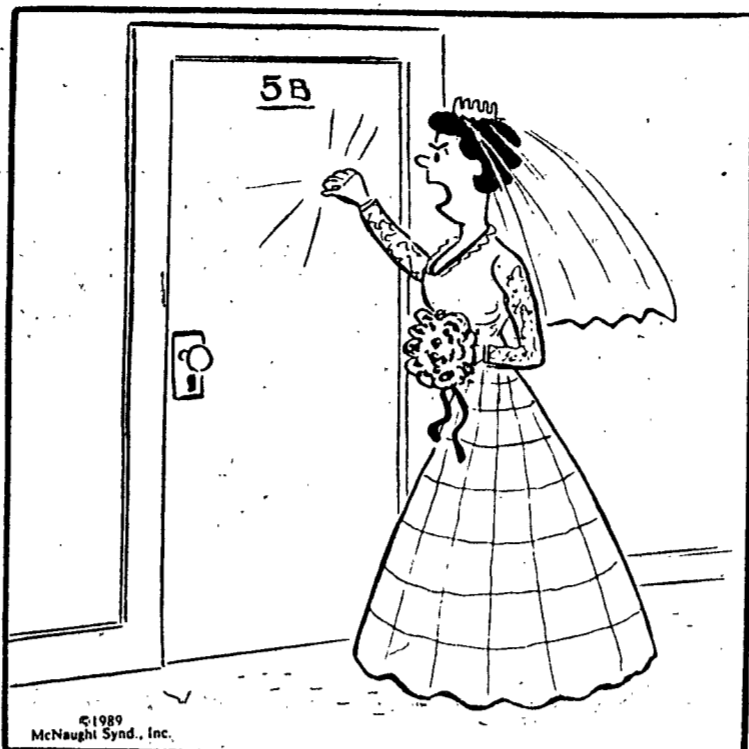

One is to give our universities and colleges a competitive boost. The plan calls for $20 million in university improvements next budget year. It also calls for $13.7 million in junior college improvements next year.

These are not insignificant projects; they are major improvements.

They range from major expansions of the libraries at the University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University and the University of Southern Mississippi at $4 million each to construction of a fine arts complex at Delta State University ($2 million) and work on the stadium and track and Alcorn State University ($1.25 million).

Just as meaningful are the improvements at the junior college level. There are 15 such projects from $960,000 in renovation work at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College and a new cafeteria and student union at Hinds Community College, to construction of a general assembly building at Coahoma Junior College in the Delta and the start of a new science building at Itawamba Community College.

Beyond all this, the capital improvements plan includes many local projects to fix up our state parks and provide badly needed public facilities.

"Do you hear me, Fred—This is your last chance!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Relatives respond to grave vandals

To the Editor:

Vandalism has struck again in one of our local cemeteries. Our parents are buried in the Bayou La Croix Cemetery. Several months ago we planted shrubbery around their tomb in the hope of adding a little beauty to a place of sadness. Both of them loved flowers.

The other day we visited their grave and discovered that two of the shrubs had literally been dug up. This is not the first time that our parents' grave has been the victim of vandalism! What is happening to our society that even a grave is not sacred?

Anyone doing such a thing should put themselves in our position. How would they like someone stealing from their parents' grave? We have experienced this three times in the past 19 months.

We pity the person or persons who would do such a thing. Evidently they think it is easier to steal something like this rather than buying it or they may get their follies from doing it. We were taught to work for what we wanted in life, not steal it. The next time someone attempts to steal from a grave think of this—wouldn't you be happier to know you bought it rather than stole it?

Randall and Charlotte

Ingalls to produce Israeli navy ships

Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula has acquired a $300 million contract to build three ships for Israel's navy, according to Gov. Ray Mabus.

Sen. Trent Lott, who made the announcement in Washington, said the contract will help to stabilize employment at the facility into the 1990s.

The contract calls for three 1,200-ton, 281-foot-long corvettes to be built at the shipyard. Officials estimate that 1,500 employees will be working on the project during peak construction.

This is the kind of news Mississippians want to hear, and should be hearing more of, as the state begins competing more aggressively on the world stage.

According to Gov. Mabus, "If it was ever proved that Mississippi can compete for world business this is it. Ingalls competed against other shipbuilders...Ingalls won that competition."

Let's continue this trend of expanding the markets for Mississippi's products. It's time to let the rest of the world in on the secret shared by few—Mississippi-made makes sense.

GIRL SCOUT PROJECT—Members of Girl Scout Troop 90 consisting of 16 girls from the Bay-Waveland area have "adopted" a section of the Beach at Washington Street in Bay St. Louis as a cleanup project. The Troop leaders are Renee Weaver and Sharon Minchew. Sarah Mahler, bottom right, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Mahler handles a rake as other troop members fill bags with trash. Wouldn't it be nice if there were other groups who would "adopt" sections of the beach or streets in the area and help keep them clean. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

HOMETOWN NEWS

From The Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

State employees won't get a pay raise, but there could be a $60 million tax increase to equalize the amount spent on every Mississippi child's education.

Rep. J. P. Compretta voted with the majority in voting for a bill that includes no additional money for salary hikes for the state Board of Nursing. The bill served as a test of support for a state employee salary raise.

Each agency can implement a four percent productivity raise, but must find the money through attrition or abolishing positions.

Sen. Gene Taylor was on the winning side in supporting a similar test bill in the Senate. A proposal tacked on to a salary appropriation for the state Board of Public Contractors prohibits all pay raises except those to fill an emergency vacancy.

The concept of equity funding, where each school district must pay a minimum amount for each student's education, passed nearly unanimously and with little fanfare the previous week in the Senate. The issue grabbed the spotlight this week, when a second bill, announcing a $60 million price tag for the program, was introduced.

Sen. Irb Benjamin of Rienzi, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, says the $60 million utility tax increase would be partially offset by the lowering of local property taxes. The bill would raise residential electricity, water and gas rates through a six percent sales tax increase.

In an unrelated bill, the House accepted a Senate-passed bill that would allow the Public Service Commission to let utilities make minor rate hikes, without going through a costly hearing process. A trial of the plan on the Coast reportedly resulted in rate reductions for consumers.

In a reversal of a previous action, the Senate on Feb. 10 decided that the state Board of Education could temporarily take over operations of a school district that loses its accreditation.

And the upper chamber rejected paying legal fees of the ACLU in its successful fight to get a cross removed from the state-owned Sillers building in Jackson. Labeled a protest move, legal procedure means the Senate is almost certain to reverse the vote.

Both chambers spent much of the week working in committees on appropriations bills. Though some agency budgets have been approved, Gov. Ray Mabus' $364 million plan to establish a capital expenditure budget plan has yet to come to the floor.

HOUSE

HB 1342. This bill, an appropriation for the state Board of Nursing, was a test vote on state employee raises. Its passage makes a wage hike unlikely in the House this year. It passed 102 to 15 with five absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

HB 885. Allows utilities to change their rates without going through a costly hearing process. A trial of the plan on the Coast reportedly resulted in rate decreases. It passed 85 to 32 with one voting present and four representatives absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

HB 606. This bill increases the mandated cap on the state's contribution to the Medicaid program. It passed 115 to three with one voting present and three absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

SENATE

SB 2195. Reversing an earlier vote, this bill would make it possible for the state Board of Education to temporarily take over operations of a school district that loses its accreditation. This bill passes 29 to 17 with six absent or not voting. Taylor, yes; Tate, absent or not voting.

SB 2195.MTS. The motion to reconsider this bill passed but then was tabled. Now, the measure to allow the state School Board to take over a district's operations now goes to the House. It passed by a vote of 25 to 21 with six absent or not voting. Taylor, absent or not voting; Tate, no.

SB 2871. A salary appropriation for the state Board of Public Contractors, this vote was a test of support for a state employee pay raise. It's passage makes a pay raise unlikely in the Senate this year. It passed by a vote of 49 to one with two absent or not voting. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

SB 2870. The Senate denied a request to pay the legal fees of the ACLU in the organization's successful suit to remove a cross from a state office building. The vote is likely to be reversed later. The bill failed by a vote of 17 to 23 with 12 absent or not voting. Taylor, no; Tate, no.

CHECK WITH CHARLIE BEFORE YOU BUY!

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

Do you read classified advertisements?

I do. Mostly, I read them when I'm trying to buy or rent something and sometimes I read "Help Wanted" ads just to see how the economy is doing. What I like best, though, is the comedy in them.

There was one I read in which a fellow advertised used lumber. Instead of selling it, he was willing to pay to get it hauled away. I wonder what his problem was.

Job ads are usually depressing unless you're an experienced waiter/waitress, bartender, engineer nurse or one of the medical-ologists. Those seem to be the people with either heavy demand or heavy turnover.

Once in a while, though, there's a job ad that evokes a visual image guaranteed to bring laughter. For example, there was one that asked for applicants "six feet tall or taller." On further reading, I found that the advertiser was not attempting to recruit a basketball team, but was instead trying to find someone to install windows.

My favorite had to be one I read asking for about 30 people of both sexes, various ages and sizes and "one very fat lady" to do a television commercial. I don't mean to say anything discriminatory about fat people, but I had recently seen comedian Roseanne Barr on television for the first time. She isn't exactly slim.

I had this crazy image of her and about 30 other people modeling one-size-fits-all shirts that really fit her and none of the others. For some reason, the shirts were a loud Hawaiian print. See what watching television can do to your mind?

The pet ads come in several varieties, such as the one currently running in The Sea Coast Echo about the cocker spaniel who's "looking for a few good girls," the average "For Sale" or "Free to a Good Home" ads, and the "Lost and Found" ads.

Sometimes they can be funny.

The best one ever, in my book, is the one that said, "Home needed for gutsy kitten found trying to cross I-10 during five o'clock traffic."

Despite the fact I already had pets, I tried to get my husband Joe to let me have that kitten, figuring the little animal was either so brave it would have a great Garfield-like personality, or that it was so foolish it needed me. I called a couple of times but it was a weekend and I never got an answer, so somebody else got the cat.

But I still wonder how many people bit at that particular ad.

Another ad category that is interesting is one sometimes printed in the kind of papers that carry news, but more extensively available in some of the little advertiser things.

Now, when I was a kid and first started to read papers, they said things like, "I, What's-his-name, will not be responsible for any debts incurred in any name other than my own on and after 1/1/89." Another ex-wife's credit cards bite the dust.

On some rare occasions one said something interesting like "Nancy, come home. We love You. Mom and Dad" or "I love you, Janice. XX."

Now such advertisements include an occasional business opportunity sneaked in under the "Personals" category and lots of "Christian, loving couples" who want to adopt newborn babies. A prayer of thanks to St. Jude sometimes finds its way out of the "Card of Thanks" column and into "Personals."

The ones the little advertisers carry are a lot less sober—in more ways than one. Some of them look like the newspaper version of "The Dating Game."

If this guy is already "35, tired of singles' bars, sensitive yet assertive," why is he looking for a "meaningful relationship with a good-looking woman about 25 years old" in the first place?

And how come the lady placing the ad that says her hobby is nude scuba diving feels she needs to specify "no weirdos"?

I also love car ads. If that darling little classic being advertised costs $600, you'd better buy yourself an erector set to use for spare parts when you assemble your used sports car.

Had I advertised that motorcycle I sold last year a little more creatively, I would have said "One ugly bike. Runs well, but ugly." Maybe it would have sold sooner.

Next time you start to skip the ad pages, remember—there's humor everywhere, even in the classifieds.

Serve someone you love a heart-healthy meal

Every once in a while you want to serve the perfect meal to the ones you love—a meal with style, good taste and good nutrition. Why not build your 'knock out' meal around seafood which offers great taste, variety and health?

Since February has been proclaimed National Heart Month by the American Heart Association (AHA), and March National Nutrition Month by the American Dietetic Association (ADA), there is no better time to show loved ones how much you really care with a heart-healthy meal.

Seafood And Your Heart
It's no secret that seafood is good for your heart since it is generally low in cholesterol, fat, sodium and calories.

Many health-related organizations such as the American Heart Association and The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute suggest that Americans incorporate more low-fat foods such as seafood, into their diets to reduce the risk of chronic diseases and maintain good health throughout life.

In addition, the first Surgeon General's Report On Nutrition and Health, released by the Department of Health and Human Service, reports that diet plays a prominent role in five of the top ten causes of death.

Diets containing a large portion of calories from foods high in fat were associated with an increased risk of obesity, coronary heart disease and some types of cancer.

Likewise, a prominent the intake of total fat and saturated fats. Below are the NIH Panel Recommendations for Americans:

* The total fat content of your diet should not be more than 30 percent of your total calories.

* Limit the amount of cholesterol you eat to 250-300 mg. That's about 100 mg for 1,000 calories.

* Reduce your total saturated fat intake to 10 percent or less of total calories. Not more than 10 percent of your calories should be in the form of polyunsaturated fat.

More Good News About the Benefits of Seafood

The unique polyunsaturated fatty acids (Omega-3 fatty acids) found primarily in seafood and marine organisms, are thought to play a role in reducing the risk of heart disease. National Institute of Health (NIH) Panel recently concluded that elevated blood cholesterol levels are a major cause of coronary heart disease and that lowering cholesterol levels, preferably through diet, will reduce the risk of heart attacks.

Eating more seafood in place of traditional high fat and cholesterol laden foods can help lower the risk of cardiovascular disease, primarily by reducing cholesterol levels.

Although there are still many questions to be answered, most researchers agree that increased fish consumption is desirable. Some researchers have even made specific recommendations such as eating one or two fish meals per week. According to Dr. William E. Connor, professor of medicine at the Oregon Health Sciences University and a pioneer in Omega-3 fatty acid research, "the ideal amount of fish to eat probably varies from person to person. A couple of six-ounce fish meals a week is probably the minimum. I certainly enjoy three to four servings of fish a week."

Recipe Suggestions for A Special Heart-Healthy Meal
So that you can create heart-healthy meals in no time, try these microwave recipes for Trout Amandine, and Crab and Broccoli Casserole, developed by the National Fisheries Institute. Each recipe was designed to serve two so there isn't any long list of ingredients, complicated shopping or leftovers.

TROUT AMANDINE
2 trout filets, about 6 ounces each

1/2 teaspoon lemon pepper
1 tablespoon margarine, divided

2 tablespoons sliced almonds
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Lemon wedges and parsley or watercress sprigs for garnish.

Pat trout dry and sprinkle with lemon pepper. Place 1 teaspoon margarine in 9-inch glass pie plate. Microwave, uncovered at HIGH 45 seconds or until melted. Stir in almonds; toss to coat. Microwave at HIGH 3 minutes or until light golden brown, stirring once. Let stand 5 minutes and reserve.

Place remaining 2 teaspoons margarine in a microwave-safe (7 x 11-inch) dish. Microwave at HIGH 45 seconds to melt. Stir in lemon juice. Coat fish in mixture and arrange skinside down in dish. Tuck under thigh edges to make an even thickness. Cover loosely with waxed paper. Microwave at HIGH 2-1/2 minutes and allow to stand, covered, for 2 minutes. Cook just until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Transfer fish to warm plates and sprinkle with toasted almonds. Serve immediately with lemon wedges and parsley garnish. Makes 2 servings.

QUICK CRAB AND BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

2 teaspoons oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon flour
1/8 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
Dash pepper
1/2 cup skim milk
1 can (6 oz.) crabmeat*, drained and cartilage removed 1-1/2 cups frozen chopped broccoli
Paprika for garnish
Combine oil and onion in 4-cup glass measure. Microwave at HIGH 45 seconds. Stir in flour, hot pepper sauce and pepper. Gradually stir in milk.

Microwave at HIGH 1 to 2 minutes or until thickened, stirring every 30 seconds. Stir in crab meat. Place broccoli in 2 individual microwave-safe casseroles. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave at HIGH 1 or 2 minutes or until thawed, stirring once. Drain off liquid. Spoon crab meat over broccoli. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave at MEDIUM (50 percent power) 1-1/2 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 2 servings.

* Can substitute blue crabmeat, dungeness crab, crab blended products and Alaskan crab.

A DINNER THAT WAITS

Skillet dinners are quick, easy and forgiving. They let stragglers have a hearty, warm dinner even if they arrive half an hour late. Not only that, there is little clean up to do once dinner is over. All in all, one-dish stovetop meals are a hearty, healthy solution to feeding a family on the go.

West Coast Skillet Dinner
1 can (16 oz.) California cling peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
2 Tablespoons butter
4 chicken breasts, skinned, boned and cut into strips
1 cup long grain white rice
1 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup chopped red bell pepper
2 Tablespoons capers
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon tarragon
1 clove garlic, minced
1 jar (6 oz.) marinated artichoke hearts
Drain peaches reserving all liquid. Melt butter in a 10-inch skillet. Add chicken strips and quickly brown over high heat. Stir in rice and onions; cook 2 minutes. Stir in red peppers, capers, salt, tarragon and garlic. Drain artichoke marinade into reserved peach liquid; pour into skillet. Bring to boil; reduce heat; cover and simmer 25 minutes or until rice is tender. Fold in peach slices and artichoke hearts and heat through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Governor's Office for Literacy announces the Learning Line

Mississippians will now be able to receive information about literacy and adult education programs by calling a toll-free statewide hotline.

Mississippi's First Lady, Julie Mabius, who is spearheading the state's drive for literacy, announced the Learning Line Wednesday. The phone number for the 24-hour, seven-days-a-week referral service is 1-800-325-7323.

"The Learning Line will be a valuable tool in helping us reach people, no matter where they reside in Mississippi," Mrs. Mabius said.

Callers will be briefly interviewed to determine their interests and needs. They will then be given information and the telephone number of the nearest literacy or adult education program to their community. Information on the calls received will then be sent to local programs for follow-up.

"This is a two-way program. Not only will the Literacy Line help those who request it, but it will also act as a referral line for people who would like to volunteer as tutors or support help for literacy programs in their areas," Mrs. Mabius said.

The Learning Line is the result of efforts of the Mississippi State Department of Education, through its Gannett Literacy Challenge Grant, the Mississippi Literacy Coalition and the Office of Literacy.

Financial support for the operation of the Learning Line includes participation by the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, Division of Job Development and Training, the Gannett Foundation, the United Way of the Capital area and donations from several local businesses.

The Learning Line is housed in the offices of the United Way of the Capital area. The local Jackson-area number for the Learning Line is 948-4725.

Bush transition was smooth, expert says

The transition from George Bush the candidate to George Bush the president was a smooth one thanks to his governmental expertise and help from his former boss, an expert on presidential transitions told a University of Southern Mississippi audience.

Carl Brauer, author of 'Presidential Transitions: Eisenhower through Reagan,' said Bush's many years of experience in various top-level positions has allowed him to feel relaxed and comfortable in his new role as chief executive. He said President's Reagan's lame-duck support of a federal pay increase and his decision to talk to the Palestine Liberation Organization also have helped.

"The pay raise will help George Bush because it will be easier to recruit people and retain them with higher salaries," Brauer told a USM University Forum audience January 24. "Reagan also helped Bush internationally by breaking a 13-year ban on talking with the PLO."

"Both of those things would have been hard for George Bush to do," Brauer continued, "but a lame duck could get away with it."

He said Bush's early success will depend on how he handles a myriad of issues facing the country—including unexpected events in the economy, the deficit and abortion.

"Our economy is very dependent on foreign investments," he said, noting a serious recession could severely damage public confidence in the Bush administration.

Warner completing fellowship

Baby dinosaur arrives at Dinamation Exhibit

The Louisiana Nature and Science Center is proud to announce the arrival of the new baby Parasaurolaphus.

The hatchling was discovered in the nest early Friday morning. Volunteers and staff had noticed cracks in one of the four eggs earlier this week. The baby can be viewed by the general public during normal visiting hours. Dr. Stuart Farber, a local pediatrician, and the official 'Dino Doc' will be on hand to check out the baby.

More than 40,000 people have already seen the new and greatly improved Dinamation Exhibit. Visitors from 36 states and 17 foreign countries have viewed the exhibit featuring the most accurate moving dinosaurs ever created.

The natural settings are enhanced by audio interpretations of each dinosaur and visual interpretive material throughout the exhibit.

New hands-on activities including the robotic display of the model of the non-dinosaur Dimetrodon and a large scale puzzle of triceratops, as well as a film about dinosaurs, a full sized Tyrannosaurus Rex leg, several areas to dig for or look at specimens of fossils, and trained volunteers make the return of the dinosaurs a more educational and entertaining experience.

Dinamation is located at 412 N. Peters Street in the French Quarter. The exhibit can be found on the second floor of the same building as Hard Rock Cafe and Tower Record. The exhibit closes May 31.

The best planting time for fruit trees is now

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Are you thinking about planting fruit trees in your yard this spring? Home grown peaches, plums, apples and pears have their appeal when you picture yourself reaching up and picking a perfect tree-ripened fruit grown in your own yard. If you are thinking about fruit trees, this is the time for planting them, and there are some important points you need to consider when selecting trees and placing them in the yard.

The majority of fruit trees sold are bare-root, meaning they have been lifted from their growing site and all soil has been removed from their roots. The roots are wrapped in a moisture-holding material and then wrapped in plastic or moisture-proof paper. Trees are also available in containers filled with soil or a potting mixture. Local nurseries, garden centers and other sources of plants have bare-root as well as container-grown trees, while mail order nurseries ship almost exclusively bare-root trees.

When selecting a location to plant your trees, keep in mind that all fruit trees need full exposure to the sun and well-drained soil. The trees should be planted where water doesn't stand after a rain, where there is sufficient space to accommodate the trees as they grow, and where they can be watered.

When selecting apple trees, there are a couple of important considerations. One of these has to do with the mature size of the tree. Standard apple trees can get quite large with age, but by selecting trees grafted to dwarfing rootstocks, it is possible to have trees that grow from only one-third of normal size to three-fourths normal size. Where space is limited, the dwarf and semi-dwarf trees are the desired choice.

Another important point when purchasing apple trees is that most apple varieties are self-unfruitful. This means that pollen from another variety of apple tree is necessary for the blossom to develop into fruit. Thus, a single apple tree planted by itself may have lots of flowers but only a few fruit. Therefore, plant two or more varieties of apples that bloom at the same time.

Some varieties of pears are self-fruitful while others are not. If you want only one pear tree, be sure to plant a variety that can pollinate itself. Orient, Baldwin, Kieffer and Spalding are particularly self-fruitful. While ability to self-pollinate is an important consideration with pears, so is resistance to the bacterial disease fire blight. This disease can be so severe in some years, that by midsummer pear trees look like they have been burned with a blow torch. Bartlett, one of the best known pear varieties, is very susceptible to fire blight and is not recommended for planting in Mississippi.

Plums are another popular fruit in Mississippi home orchards. As a rule, plums are not self-fruitful; so again, it is necessary to plant at least two trees, one each of two different varieties. The variety Methley, however, is partially self-fruitful and will set some fruit when grown by itself, but the crop is likely to be light.

Peaches as a rule are self-fruitful, so it is possible to make a crop when only one tree is planted.

Plums have a tendency to bloom early in the year, and blossoms may be damaged by frost. This shouldn't discourage you from planting plums, but take precautions to limit cold injury by planting plum trees in locations with good air movement.

Do not place fertilizer in the planting holes or around the trees immediately after planting. Once the trees are settled in, and growth has begun, a light application of fertilizer can be applied. Be prepared to water the trees during periods when rainfall is light.

Sewing can be simple

Sewing can be easy, fun and fast. If time and skill are crucial factors to your sewing schedule, chosen patterns, fabrics and notions that are easy to sew and use.

Many patterns are labeled as being fast and easy to make. Often pattern catalogs are tabbed to easy patterns so that you can find them quickly.

When looking for a pattern, consider time saving characteristics such as patterns with few seams and few pieces (three to six at the most). Look for patterns with straight lines and little or no fitting required.

Avoid those with extra details such as tucks or top stitching and choose patterns with little or no hand sewing. Look for patterns with single closures and symmetrical sides (left and right sides cut by the same pattern piece at the same time).

After you have selected an easy pattern, select a fabric that is simple to sew, such as non-slippy, nonraveling, plain weaves; solid colors or small designs without nap or one way designs; and those with little or no surface finishes.

New tools and notions are continuously being developed to help make sewing faster and more efficient.

Easy-to-handle fabric weights instead of pins can be used to hold pattern pieces in place for layout and cutting.

Fabric glue sticks and water soluble basting tapes allow you to position seams, zippers, hems and trims without pinning or hand basting.

Marking pens with water soluble or disappearing ink make pattern marking quick and easy.

Fusible interfacings and webs are often used in time-saving sewing. Keep a good stockpile of colors and types on hand for convenience and easy access.

By choosing an easy-to-sew pattern, an easy-to-sew fabric, and time-saving notions, your sewing time can be cut to a minimum.

Gulf Pines Council looks to future

The annual meeting of the Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council attracted 132 elected and non-voting delegates, board members and staff to the Wiley Fairchild Family Center in Hattiesburg last weekend.

Representatives from all over the 15 southern Mississippi counties that make up the Gulf Pines Council helped decide which direction Girl Scouting will take in the future, both locally and on the national level.

Delegates participated in seven forums discussing camp fees, product sales, Brownie participation in overnight trips and troop fund raisers, the male role in Girl Scouting, safety, camp property development and where Girl Scouting should be in the year 2000.

Input from these forums will have a significant impact on policies and decisions made by the council's board of directors and administrative staff. For example, delegates said they believed it would be okay to raise camp fees if the increase would improve the overall quality of the camp experience. They also expressed a desire to see renovation of the present facilities at Camp Iti Kana as opposed to new construction.

Looking ahead to the next century, delegates wanted adult education offered through the council continued, as well as Girl Scouting's commitment to addressing contemporary issues facing girls. Gulf Pines Council executive director Kitty Reid and council president Patricia Santucci will take the council response on the future direction of Girl Scouting to the national meeting of presidents and executive directors in Atlanta, Ga. in April.

Two new members-at-large were elected to the Gulf Pines Council board of directors, Hazel Portwood of Gulfport and Jerry Weston of Pascagoula.

Homemakers present 'Latch-Key' Program

On Friday, Feb. 17, the Hancock County Homemakers presented the 'Latch-Key' Program to fifth-grade students at Waveland Elementary School.

This program is designed for children who need to spend time alone before and after school. Children need to know what to do in case of emergency. The program covers many subjects such as getting home safely, using the telephone, emergency calling, etc.

A booklet was distributed to each child, outlining all aspects of what might happen when they are at home alone and solutions. Emergency numbers were given to teachers for display, and an important number chart to be placed by the telephone was included in booklet.

The program was enthusiastically received by teachers and students.

The club thanks Mrs. Darlene Underwood, Hancock County Home economist; Mrs. Helen Stanley, chairman; Mrs. Wanda Berthelot, Mrs. Tommie Ziegler, Mrs. Mary Werner and Mrs. Norma Haas for participation; also Mr. James Bal-dree, principal, Waveland Elementary; teachers and students. All were vital to the success of the program.

Mississippi 2020 to meet at Gulfside

The Mississippi 2020 'Spring Gathering' will take place Saturday, March 4 at 9 a.m. at the Gulfside Assembly in Waveland.

Founded in 1985, the Mississippi 2020 network was formed for the purpose of building models to educate communities throughout the state, providing positive alternatives for a more humane and sustainable quality of life.

Based in Jackson, the organization has members statewide and plans to build a network of chapters in every major city in Mississippi. Several local members who are in the process of forming a Gulf Coast chapter will host the spring gathering for the purpose of coalition-building and to encourage membership growth for the Mississippi 2020 network.

The program will include speakers from the Sierra Club, The Greens, Educators for Social Responsibility, Pax Christi, Partners for Global Justice, and Chemical-Free Food Co-Op, who will describe the purpose and goals of their organizations.

CONSUMER UPDATE

Not everyone needs credit life insurance

If you've recently borrowed money or purchased a large item such as a car or furniture, you may have been encouraged to purchase credit life insurance to pay off your loan in the event of your death.

While some bank and credit union loans are automatically covered by credit life insurance, other creditors may offer it as an extra you must pay for if you want it. The law, however, prohibits a creditor from requiring you to purchase credit "life" insurance.

If you are single and have no dependents, you may not need the insurance. From the borrower's point of view, credit life insurance is to protect those left behind against debts. Without dependents, there is little need for the insurance.

If you are a young person in good health with a non-hazardous job, credit life insurance is not such a good buy. Less expensive insurance can be bought through an insurance company.

Because credit insurance costs the same regardless of the borrower's age, health, or occupation, it would be a good buy for older people, people in poor health, and people with hazardous occupations. Persons in these situations may find insurance to cover them to be just as costly from an insurance company.

If you already have sufficient life insurance to cover your debts in the event of your death, purchasing additional insurance in the form of credit life insurance may be unnecessary.

Some creditors wish to have an agreement in writing that a portion of the death benefit from your present policy be assigned to them in the event of your death.

In addition to the cost of credit life insurance, you may be paying additional interest charges to finance this expense.

In most cases, credit life insurance is simply added to the amount borrowed, thus increasing your total debt, finance charges and monthly payments.
